"Hello, Syd!" said the first, a thick, young man of seven or eight and twenty, with reddish hair, a wide mouth, and outstanding ears, whose name was Brady Gane.

Paul nodded and turned to the other man.

"You here, Evans?"

Will Evans, a small, thin, consumptive-looking Welshman, with a slightly hooked nose, and small black eyes too close together, nodded with a somewhat grudging air. He had his own reasons for being less cordial to Paul than Gane was. He was a mean, shrewd little rascal, who considered that upon himself and Gane there fell the greater part of the dirty work which had to be undertaken in order to keep Syd Tomkinson, the ostensible head of their very shady firm, in the position which he deserved to be in.

The three men went into the cafe together, sat down at a table which they chose carefully, "for," as Will Evans said, "in these foreign holes you never know what confounded scoundrels you may be sitting next to," and proceeded to discuss their plans.

"So you've pulled it off," said Gane with a grin which displayed two rows of very uneven teeth, and made him look like a comic mask in a pantomime.

Paul shrugged his shoulders and looked bored. It was the attitude he generally assumed with his confederates, to mark the vast space there was between them.

"In a way, I have," he admitted. "But it doesn't look as if it is going to do us much good. My confounded brother-in-law was after us last night, knocking us up at the hotel and making a devil of a row with some tommy rot about me that he pretended to have picked up somewhere."

Gane's grin died away, but Evans continued to stare fixedly at Paul in a distrust which was very ill concealed.

"Well, he can't do anything now," said Gane uneasily. "These high-toned families can't take any action against themselves; and now you've married an earl's daughter, why you're as good as an earl's son, aren't you?"

"I should hope so," said Paul super-ciliously.

Will Evans gave an unappreciative grunt.

"Some folks fancy themselves," said he dryly.

"Hold your jaw," said he. "Can't you give over for ever making yourself disagreeable? Now, too, when we've got a chance of doing well for ourselves?"

He turned admiringly to Paul. "I'm sure, Syd, you look as well as any young lord, and nobody'd ever believe you're nothing but a Yankee. You carry yourself as proud as any in the land."

Will Evans was staring at Paul with a wooden face of disapproval.

"Well," said he, "when are we going to share out?"

Paul turned to him with upraised eyebrows.

"Eh?" said he.

Evans nodded almost ferociously.

"Yes," said he. "We gave you over all our shares as well as your own of that last lot—you know, the Vienna lot—for you to cut a dash with. You told us when once you'd given the things to this Lady Tom Nobody of yours, she'd give them back for you to sell for the poor. Well, now's your time. We're the poor. So hand us over our share and have done with it."

Paul sat back and stirred his coffee-stew. The other two were drinking wine, and complaining that it was not beer, but Paul was very abstemious, and never joined in the carousals of his companions.

"I don't quite understand," he said in the most civil tone. "You don't want me to develop all the jewels I've given to my wife, and to divide them up at once, surely?"

"That's what we do expect, and what we insist upon, too," said Evans firmly. "You can make some excuse that you want to put them in a safe place while you're travelling about, and, after all, your own share is a pretty big one. We're only asking for our rights."

"Of course, of course. I quite understand. Well, it will seem rather odd to ask for them so quickly; but, of course, I am at your service. If you want your share at once, you must have it."

"Why shouldn't we?" demanded Evans aggressively. "If you told the truth when you said the girl didn't care for such things. If she's a born fool, we're not."

"You'll be good enough not to speak in that tone of my wife," said Paul sharply.

The other two men exchanged a rapid glance of astonishment.

"You've changed your tune about her ladyship a bit, haven't you?" asked Evans dryly.

"Not that I know of," replied Paul, quickly.

You told us as how you were bored to death when you were with her ladyship," went on Evans in the same tone as before.

Paul answered with decision and dignity.

"If I told you that, I ought to have added that it is my fault, not hers. I've been used to so much tagrag and bobtail that I've lost touch of decent society."

Both the other men looked astonished, and Evans scowled.

"Oh, so that's your tone, is it? We're not good enough for you now, I suppose?"

"You never were," said Paul shortly. "In a social sense, of course."

Evans half rose from his chair, angry and spiteful. But Gane pulled him down again.

"Let him alone," said he good-humouredly. "He's all right, he is. If he wasn't a bit of a toff, where should we be? I'm sure, Syd, I wish you were as happy and the lady, too, and I only hope as she won't bore you more than what you'll bore her before you are done."

The warning had sufficient significance to displease Paul, who nodded, and said:

"Well, that's enough on that head. My domestic life is my own affair."

"Oh, no, it isn't," cried Evans. "You married this 'ere sprig of aristocracy so as to get a footing in big houses, didn't you, so as to play our game?"

"That'll do. Not so loud," said Gane nervously.

Paul rose to his feet.

"When do you want the things?" he asked shortly.

"Oh, just when your lordship pleases," said Evans, with mock humility. "It ain't for the likes of us to dictate to your lordship. At the same time, if your lordship was to find himself in the Palais Royal this afternoon, somewhere about five—with what your lordship and your lordship's ladyship can spare in the way of diamonds and such like, we should be humbly obliged."

"Don't be a silly ass, Will," said Gane.

Paul smiled good humouredly.

"All right," said he. "I'll be there. We'll find some play where we can have a talk and a share out."

And while the three rogues were thus making their plans, Lady Ursula had been seeking a violent none the less welcome for being unexpected.

Paul had not been gone more than half an hour when Lord Eastling drove up to the hotel, and went at once to the private sitting room occupied by the bride and bridegroom.

He had found out that his sister was alone, and he expressed his thankfulness the moment he entered.

"Thank Heaven," he said in a low voice, as he came in and shut the door. "I've got you all to myself. Where is that rascal?"

Lady Ursula resisted him as he tried to give her an affectionate kiss.

"Tom," she said, "you mustn't talk like that to me. Paul is my husband. I don't believe a word against him, and I know you won't either when you've had time to make full inquiries."

Lord Eastling heard her in silence. There was a pause, and then he made up his mind.

"All right," he said simply. "I'll say nothing about him. Nothing. Where is he?"

"I suppose I may say that."

"He's gone out to send some telegrams. What are you staying in Paris for?"

"I had to see you again before going back. Since I can do nothing, I shall start for England this afternoon. There's just one thing I must ask you to do first, though."

"What is it, Tom?"

"Payne gave you some handsome jewellery as a marriage present."

"Yes."

"Have you got it with you?"

"Yes."

"I want you to let me take it back to England with me."

"I shall be very glad if you will. Tom, I told Paul that it was absurd to carry such valuable jewellery about with us, especially as, by his wish, I've brought no maid with me. I told him that our mother always has hers locked up in the strongroom, or at the bank."

"Of course. Well, give it to me and I'll take it back home with me."

No Cause to Complain

The work of the navy is silent, but it is nevertheless the commanding fact of the war. It is upon that work, that the whole strategy of the allies is based, and we can conceive of no greater injustice to the navy and of more serious discredit to our cause than to suggest that in establishing our command of all the seas of the world our sailors are unemployed. If Germany conquers us the seas without a challenge, of what have we to complain? London Daily News.

"Mike," said Pat, "how do you tell the age of a fowl?"

"O! can always tell by the teeth," shot back Mike.

"By the teeth?" exclaimed Pat. "But a fowl ain't got no teeth."

"No," admitted Mike, "but O! have."

Algy—I'd like awfully to know whether she will marry me or not.

How to Save Your Eyes

Try This Free Prescription.

Do your eyes give you trouble? Do you already wear eyeglasses or spectacles? Thousands of people wear these "windows" who might easily dispense with them. You may be one of these, and it is in your duty to save your eyes before it is too late. The eyes are neglected more than any other organ of the entire body. After you finish your day's work you sit down and rest your muscles, but how about your eyes? Do you rest them? You know you do not. You read or do something else that tires your eyes every day; you work your eyes until you go to bed. That is why so many have strained eyes and finally other eye troubles that threaten partial or total blindness. Eyeglasses are merely crutches; they never cure. This free prescription, which has benefited the eyes of so many, may work equal wonders for you, too. It is a short time. Would you like your eye troubles to disappear as if by magic? Try this prescription. Drop one tablet in 3 glasses of water and allow it to thoroughly dissolve. With this liquid bottle the eyes two to four times daily. Just note how quickly your eyes clear up and the inflammation which has been disappearing. Don't be afraid to use it; it is absolutely harmless. Many who are now blind might have saved their eyes had they started to care for them in time. This is a simple treatment, but remarkably effective in multitudes of cases. Now that you have been warned don't delay a day, but do what you can to save your eyes and you are likely to thank us as long as you live for publishing this prescription. The Valmas Drug Co. of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

A prominent City Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Ben-Opto is a very valuable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

The beef of a whole bullock is required to make a dozen bottles of Bovril. You can safely reduce butchers' bills if you use Bovril in soups and stews. But—it must be Bovril, in the Bovril bottle. No substitute will do. The strength and nourishment of Bovril cannot be compressed into cheap cubes.

HUSBAND SAVED HIS WIFE

Stopped Most Terrible Suffering by Getting Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Denison, Texas.—"After my little girl was born two years ago I began suffering with female trouble and could hardly get on my work. I was very nervous but just kept dragging on until last summer when I got where I could not do my work. I would have a chill every day and hot flashes and dizzy spells and my head would almost burst. I got where I was almost a walking skeleton and life was a burden to me until one day my husband's sister told my husband if he did not do something for me I would not last long and told him to get my medicine. So he got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and after taking the first three doses I began to improve. I continued its use, and I have never had any female trouble since. I feel that I owe my life to you and your remedies. They did for me what doctors could not do and I will always praise it wherever I go."—Mrs. G. O. LOWERY, 419 W. Monterey Street, Denison, Texas.

If you are suffering from any of the female ills, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and commence its treatment without delay.

"There is much truth in the saying of the cynics that a economical wife is a woman who never allows a crumb to fall from her husband's table without carefully picking it up and putting it in her husband's bed," says a writer in an English paper.

"Well, if that Watson isn't the most conceited, self-satisfied, self-righteous fellow I ever met."

"Yes, I've heard you say something of that kind before. What's started you off this time?"

"He's just sent a telegram of congratulations to his mother."

"Well—?"

"Today's his birthday."

Employer—Well, what did he say when you called to collect that bill?

Clerk—That he would break every bone in my body and pitch me out of the window if I showed my face there again.

Employer—Then go back at once and tell him he can't frighten me by his violence.

Rankin—You can't beat the folioles of the law, eh?

Phyic—Now, what's the matter? "Remember Freddy Ford?"

"Certainly!"

"He inherited a big fortune last week, and now he is trying to have his name legally changed to Limousine."

Note and CommentBASEBALL DANCE.

The dance given by the Ball Club on Friday night was a complete success. A large number took advantage of the train service and came from all the towns along the line west of here. The finest music ever heard at a dance here was procured from Castor, and all speak highly of it.

At the next dance the Club intend having the same music and every one is assured a good time.

AGAIN UNDER FIRE

For the third time in six months the Star Cafe has been bombarded. On Saturday about midnight Charlie Yee was awakened from his slumbers by what he thought was an earthquake or a Zeppelin raid. About twenty of the young bloods in this burg were trying to make a second Louvain out of the eating joint, and rocks, coal, etc., were in great evidence around the windows and roof of the cafe. After the dust of conflict had settled there was very little of the facade left. It is a pity that when the bunch around town get plastered they cannot leave the Cafe alone for change. Everyone in town was disturbed by the hideous noises created by these carousers and it is no joke being awakened at one or two o'clock in the morning.

The Village of Monitor has no better nor more law observing citizens than the local Chinamen. But some of our citizen's who ought to know better, seem to think that they can with impunity every time they take a notion to do so, wreck the outside and inside of the local Chinese restaurant, if they turn in afterwards and pay for the damage they have done. This has happened so often that we think the next time it does happen the local authorities ought to have all the offenders before them and fine them severely for breach of the peace.

And that reminds us that we have a word to say on the liquor question. We see a great deal too much drunkenness on our streets. Within the past few weeks we have seen persons who are on the interdicted list loaded about as full as they can carry. We do not know who supplies them with the liquor but it does not seem to be hard for them to get it.

Only last week we saw one of them standing on the sidewalk outside the bar of the Monitor Hotel and drinking a glass of liquor which was handed out to him. We do not say that the hotel authorities had anything to do with it, but it certainly looks raw.

It will be a good thing for the town and the country in general when the first of July comes and the bars are a thing of the past.

It is said the man who squeezes a dollar, never squeezes his wife. After looking over our subscription list we have come to the conclusion that there are a fine lot of women in this district who are being sadly neglected.

MAN AND THE SKIRT

When its narrow, long and flat, Then he say she's "like a slat"; When it shows a curving shape At her "padded hips" he'll gape

When it flares and flounces wide Her "balloon dress" he'll deride When it closely, tightly clings, Then he says—the rudest things

When divided with a slit, How a glimpse will start his wit When it shrinks towards the [knees, He makes public all he sees, Yet his money he will blow, On a skirtless girlie show: When he doesn't have to pay, What's he kick for, anyway?

F. Moyon.

The Irish rebels had at least the courage to risk their lives in a hopeless enterprise, in which men of good judgement never would of embarked, but their instigators in the States and elsewhere have been careful to preserve their own skins intact, while shouting for principles in behalf of which they dare not fire a shot.

Turkey's problem seems to be narrowing down into the question as to whether she will be controlled by Germany or by Russia when the war ends.

A writer in the N. Y. Sun suggests that the Tuon-Hibernian coalition be known as the Fritz-Patricks.

Among the Irish extremists on this side of the Atlantic one finds often more anxiety to get even with Great Britain for wrongs, real or fancied, suffered in the past, than eagerness to help the Ireland of the present toward a better destiny.

"Sometimes" says Mrs. Longwed, "I think my husband is the patientest, gentlest, best natured soul that ever lived, and sometimes I think it's just laziness."

The mail system east of here is certainly working in first class shape as letters and cards that were posted in Kirriemuir on Monday morning May 1st, only took nine days to reach Monitor, as it was Thursday, May 9th, before they arrived here. Quick work alright.

Average first year depreciation of the Ford car is $125 as against $250 to $400 for practically any of the lower priced cars

It is difficult to set any definite figure for the depreciation of an automobile. So much depends on the condition of the individual car at the end of the season.

The average price paid for used cars in the $1000-or-less class at any time during the first year is about $250 to $400 less than the first cost. But the average used Ford sells very quickly for $125 less than the purchase price.

Compare the Ford depreciation cost of about $10 a month with the probable $30 or more a month that the other kind will cost you. Which is the better investment?

That Awful Ache of Lumbago Rubbed Away for All Time

Hurrah! No More Suffering—
Every Ache Goes Quick

RUB ON NERVILINE

Lumbago is a peculiar sort of rheumatic trouble that affects the muscles about the loins and back. At times its agony is intense. Severe spasms of pain shoot in all directions, and become more severe on stooping.

In treating lumbago or stitch in the back, it is necessary to keep warmly covered to prevent a sudden chill. Attend to this, and then apply Nerviline freely.

Almost instantly you feel its warm soothing action. Tight through the cords and muscles the healing power of Nerviline penetrates.

Quick as a wink you feel the stiffness lessening. You realize that a powerful pain-subduing remedy is curing the pain, is easing your distress, is making you well again.

Nerviline quickly cures backache and lumbago because it has the strength, the power and penetrating force possessed by no other known remedy. Its amazing curative action is due to certain extracts and juices of rare herbs and roots, combined by a secret process, and forming a truly magical medical marvel.

Any sort of aches in the muscles and joints Nerviline will cure quickly. It enters the pain right up—relieves stiffness, restores the muscles to their wonted elasticity and vigor.

It's the quickest thing imaginable for rheumatism, sciatica or neuralgia. As for carache, toothache, sprains or strains, nothing can excel good old Nerviline.

The Kaiser's Ear

The Kaiser has a habit of pulling one of his ears when he is vexed about anything, and once when he was on a visit to England, and with the present king he pulled his ear continually.

At last, one of the King's sons, who had been watching the imperial guest for some time, could stand it no longer and bluntly said:

"Why do you pull your ear?"

"Because I am annoyed," replied the Kaiser.

"And when you are very much annoyed, what do you do then?" continued the prince.

"Why, then," said the Kaiser sharply, "I pull some one else's ear!"

And there the conversation died.

Cure Borders on The Miraculous

A. SAWYER TELLS OF WONDERFUL WORK OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

He and His Wife, After Years of Doctoring, Found Quick Relief and Permanent Cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Caporal Junction, Ont.—(Special.)—Bordering on the miraculous is the cure of Mr. A. Sawyer, of this place. For ten years he was an invalid. Five doctors failed to help him. When he was a complete wreck, and unable to walk across his room he decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Six boxes of them made him like a new man.

"Yes, I suffered for ten years," Mr. Sawyer said in speaking of his cure. "The doctors of whom I tried, five altogether, couldn't give me any permanent relief. Some said I had rheumatism, others called it lumbago, but I got steadily worse."

"I must say I was a complete wreck when I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. They made a new man of me. My wife got the same good results from them. It was after trying several doctors and a specialist from Sault Ste. Marie, who advised her to stay in bed a month, that she decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. She took a dozen boxes in all with splendid results. We both praise Dodd's Kidney Pills. No one can speak too highly of them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have a record of over a quarter of a century in Canada, during which time they have earned undying praise in all parts of the Dominion. Ask your neighbors about them.

Preparedness

Now that all nations are talking preparedness, why not discuss health preparedness. While we have been negligent in protecting our country against the enemy, we have also failed lamentably in fortifying our human bodies against disease germs.

This has been proven in the recruiting offices, where so many men have been turned down by the examining doctors. Weak heart action; diseased lungs; thin, watery blood; defective eyesight, resulting from exhausted nerves. These are among the prevailing derangements which the examining doctors find.

Health has been neglected. The blood has not been kept in healthful condition. The nervous system has got run down, and the subject under inspection is in no condition to fight the enemies of his country or to withstand the attack of disease germs.

Health preparedness means the use of preventive treatment, such as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, to enrich the blood, reinvigorate the starved nerve cells and keep the health at high-water mark. In this condition you have the strength, vigor and confidence which is necessary to the success and enjoyment of life. You have the vitality to defy disease germs and thereby escape many ills which find an easy prey in the run-down system.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, by means of its blood-forming and nerve-invigorating influence, cures headaches, nervous indigestion, sleeplessness and irritability, and prevents such serious diseases as nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis.

Make a Few Hundred Extra Out of Flax

Now It After Wheat is in, on Late Fields and New Breaking

Records show that in the three prairie provinces the average flax crop exceeds 12 bushels per acre. As you know, the average price for several months past has been around $2 a bushel, and if war conditions continue the 1916 crop will probably bring in even more.

Unlike the other grain crops, flax can be sown as late as the first week in June, and it does well on wet, late land and on new breaking, where you cannot make other grains pay at all. This $20 to $30 an acre from late sown and otherwise unproductive land is like found money, and is certainly worth going after. As the possibilities of flax become better known more and more farmers will be sure to take it up, but those who do so this season will get the top of the market, and probably make the biggest profits.

In a recent article of the subject, J. H. Drisdale, B.A., director Dominion experimental farm, says: "For the new settler or the man with new breaking done before May 25 or 26, flax offers an opportunity for money-making this year on this land such as is not possible with any other crop."

French Give Canada the Credit For Saving Calais

Recognition of Canadian gallantry by French officers is recorded in a letter received by Archdeacon Cody from Lieutenant-Colonel Charles H. Mitchell of Toronto, of the headquarters staff of the First Canadian division.

"Everybody in my army corps from the privates to the highest officers, know how gallantly the Canadians acted, and how equal—well that without them the Germans would have reached Calais. There is not the slightest doubt about that," said General d'Oisee, of the Thirty-sixth French army corps, when presenting medals of the French Legion of Honor to 38 Canadian officers of the first contingent.

Colonel Mitchell's letter read: "General d'Oisee's men were on the left of the Canadian division when the gas attack was launched. Each officer was struck on each shoulder with the flat of the general's sword, and was then kissed on each cheek."

Fly Poison Kills More Children Than All Other Poisons Combined

For Safety's Sake, Use

Is there within your home, anywhere within baby's reach, a saucer of arsenic poisoned paper floating in water, or a can with a sweetened poisoned wick?

During 1915, 26 cases of fly poisoning were reported from 11 states; in 1914, 46 cases from 14 states. Fly poison kills more children than all other poisons combined.

Yet fly poison still is left unguarded except in the homes where mothers have learned that the safe, sure, non-poisonous, efficient fly catcher and destroyer is

TANGLEFOOT

The Journal of the Michigan State Medical Society comments thus in a recent issue:

"Symptoms of arsenical poisoning are very similar to those of cholera infantum; undoubtedly a number of cases of cholera infantum were really cases of arsenical poisoning, but death, if occurring, was attributed to cholera infantum."

"We repeat, arsenical fly destroying devices are dangerous and should be abolished. Health officials should become aroused to prevent further loss of life from their source. Our Michigan Legislature, this last session, was wise in regulating the sale of poisonous fly papers."

Tumult of the Food Riots plainly heard in Kaiser's Palace.

London May 15.—Hell let loose so, graphically, Vorwaerts, the organ of the German socialists ends its description of the food riots in Berlin last Tuesday.

Lloyd's news, despatch from Amsterdam states that a neutral traveller has just arrived there from Berlin with a smuggled copy of Vorwaerts describing the riots, Wednesday's issue of the paper having been suppressed. To quote the Socialists newspaper:—"Some of the conflicts between the hungry people and the police took place in the centre of the city. The inmates of the kaiser's palace plainly heard the tumult and the shooting which followed it. The whole day was like one in a civil war. In the workingmen's district, a crowd attempted to rush several provision stores, but the police lined the street and a battle ensued.

Nearly a dozen persons were wounded and taken to hospitals.

Differences between Greece and Allies settled amicably.

London, May 15.—The foreign office announced to day that the outstanding differences between Greece and the entente powers had been settled amicably, with the result that there would be no violation of the neutrality of Greece.

U. S. preparing very vigorous protest to Great Britain.

Washington, May 15.—The American government is preparing a protest characterised by officials as "very vigorous" against the interference with mails to and from the United States by Great Britain. A note to this effect sent forward in the near future will take the position that the United States can no longer countenance seizure and detention of mails to and from the United States, particularly those concerning neutrals.

The reply recently received from Great Britain to the last American note protesting against interference with American mails is considered unsatisfactory. Protests have been made to the government by many individuals and firms who have been injured by the frequent long delays to which mails between Europe and the United States have been subjected.

The subject is under detailed study at the State department and President Wilson has decided to make representations to Great Britain as quickly as the note can be completed. The British government will be informed that the United States considers it imperative that her present policy be modified.

Declares Germany is Beaten

New York, May 15.—S. Hill, who was associated for 12 years with J. J. Hill in his railroad enterprises, but is not a relative, arrived last night from Liverpool on the American liner Philadelphia. He said, "the end of the war is in sight. Germany is beaten. Peace will come suddenly, as the great war started in August 1914. There will not be another winter campaign. Germany cannot struggle against the overwhelming financial strain and the economic conditions prevailing. King Albert whom I have known personally for 20 years, was in excellent health and confident of having the country restored to him, which is regarded as a certain victory for the Allies.
